

You are a stakeholder in the Lefthand Creek and we need your help!

What: Source Water Protection Meeting

Where: Left Hand Water District Office
6800 Nimbus Road
Longmont, CO 80503

When: October 9th, at 5:30

Why: During the meeting we will explain the protection plan process and briefly discuss the current threats to our water supply. We will challenge you to get involved in the Source Water Protection Planning Process by participating in committee meetings.

A stakeholder is an individual or organization with a legitimate interest in a given situation, action or enterprise. If you drink water, live, or recreate in the Lefthand Watershed than you are a stakeholder and we want to hear your perspectives and opinions regarding the protection of the water quality of the Lefthand Creek watershed.

The Left Hand Water District values a clean, high quality drinking water supply. We recognize the possibility of potential threats to our water supply, the Lefthand Creek and its tributaries. We realize that to protect the source of our drinking water, we need to develop a protection plan to prevent possible contamination of our source waters. Thus we are organizing a Source Water Protection Plan to help preserve the long-term integrity of our water system. We would like to invite you to help us achieve our goal of maintaining the cleanest, drinking water possible.
